THE THIRD PARTY

OAKLAND CITY, July 12, 1886.

For the CLARION Wm. Land was up Saturday night and made a lengthy speech in favor of a third party. In doing this he is taking no leap in the dark, for he knows full well he is directly antagonizing the republican party, the best friend the temperance cause ever had or now has, and giving his influence to the democratic party, which makes no pretensions to temperance and promises nothing in the future. I ask him in all candor if he can give one single instance where the prohibition party has ever defeated the democratic party, but on the other hand it has never failed to injure or defeat the republican party, and he knows this. It is true that in some of the states south by a local option law the people have secured prohibition, and that without the aid of this so called third party, for it was a matter with the people and politics was entirely out of the question. The prohibitionists should stop laying their false claims to the honor of effecting prohibition in the south. If the would be attorney general will look up the laurels this party has obtained in the northern states he will find that all the time and everywhere it has been an assistant democratic party. He can point to nothing good his party has ever effected, and unless it has a platform of more than one idea, it never will. The republican party of the state of Indiana this year will doubt less have a local option plank in its platform, and wherever there is public sentiment to support this we can have prohibition, and this is the best possible temperance measure to be obtained now in this state. Wisdom on the part of the prohibitionists would cause them to support such a measure as this, no difference which party might adopt it. This course would obtain good results, whereas their course now will defeat the best ends of temperance. I hope Mr. Land will see that he makes a few speeches in democratic strongholds and not put all his efforts in strong republican townships, and as I am indeed sorry he has turned his back upon twenty five good years of his former life, I can to a certain extent overlook it on the ground that he is now in his dotage.

DIED IN FLORIDA.

Mr. A. H. Polk received a telegram yesterday noon conveying the sad intelligence of the death of George W. Biven, at Lakland, Fla. The death must have been very sudden as the relatives here had no knowledge of Mr. Biven being ill. A card received from him about a week ago said "All are well." The announcement will be a great shock to Mr. Biven's many friends in the county. About two years ago he and his wife moved to Florida for the benefit of their health. They were both greatly benefited by the change of climate and had secured a comfortable home and were living in happiness and contentment.
