

Alten let the Evas make just three hits in the second contest, not a single Eva got past first. Timely hitting, walks and errors made scoring easy for the Reapers. The game went but seven innings by agreement.

Springfield played errorless ball all day, while the Evas were charged with seven misplays. Three of these were made by Kelly and two by Winchell.

RECORDS SMASHED

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 1—Junior A. A. U. records went by the boards Friday in the opening card of the national meet. The Illinois Athletic club of Chicago carried off team honors.

MAKES SHORT WORK

NEW YORK, Sept. 1—Ted Low of England, world champion welterweight, knocked out Al Badoni, French champion, in the first round of a bout here Friday night.

to come with him.

He tossed up a couple of easy ones, then he suddenly stretched himself out. He was bent almost double, with his head on the level of his hips, his left gloved hand stretched out far in front and his right hand with the ball far behind.

The right hand swept down, missing the ground by a few inches and the ball shot upward to the catcher, breaking sharply.

It was Carl Mays executing his submarine ball, the only one in captivity.

Mays has speed, a good curve and a change of pace. In addition his underhand delivery is hard for most batsmen to hit.

"Jack Barry" he told me, "is the only manager who did not try to break me of the underhand delivery. Even Bill Carrigan, as smart a manager as ever lived, thought I should drop the underhand and adopt the side arm or overhand delivery."

"In the minor leagues I was always having arguments with managers who believed the underhand delivery was to be tabooed because it was scarcely ever used."

"That was the best reason, to my notion, for keeping on using it. A batter is less likely to hit the kind of pitching he seldom sees than that he runs across every day.

There are many faults which a manager can correct, but when it comes to changing a pitcher's whole delivery, I believe he is radically wrong. Many pitchers have been ruined by having a manager interfere with their pitching style."

This year Mays' pitching average is just a trifle below Babe Ruth's, at .674, and his earned run average is 1.92 per game, fifth in the list of American league pitchers.

Mays' average of the past three seasons shows that he is right, at least so far as his own case is concerned.

OUTLOOK DARK FOR GOOD NET TOURNAY

Earl Diedrich was the only new entry in the city tennis tournament, Director Ray Haas stated early in the day. He hoped to get more later on.

It is feared this year's tournament will not show the class of former contests, because of the small entry list. Old stars have failed to enter and newcomers have not taken advantage of the opportunity.

Washington bumped New York into sixth place by taking two games from them Friday. The fall-down of the Yankees is pathetic. They have almost an all-star team and looked like sure winners last spring. But you never can tell.
