Shawalter had gone to Mt. Carmel with about $200 in his pocket to buy some cattle. He met Pond, the latter hid, and Pond, after night, got Shawalter to a secluded place, beat him to death and took his money. The body was taken in a horse and buggy to the Indiana side, crossing the ferry without any suspicion being aroused. Pond hid the body in a brush heap, he said, and returned the next night and buried it. The river washed the body up nine months later and it was found by two brothers, Gabbert by name, living near East Mt. Carmel.

Jesse Lucans' mother, Lib Lucas was a notorious character of the Mt. Carmel waterfront. It was suspected that she and her son had lured Shawalter to the Lucas resort resort and there killed him.

Judging from the newspaper accounts of that period, Lucas and his mother fell under suspicion immediately and seemed to have been judged guilty by popular verdict even before the trial. Lucas was about 24 years old when arrested in 1908.

Pond's confession came reluctantly and apparently when he had given up all hope that he could recover.

The confession was oral and was heard by the wife and a Mrs. Smith, of Decker, each of whom made a separate affidavit which is now in possession of authorities. The confession, as reported by them, is supported by corroborative affidavits, it is said.

Those working on the case had not intended to make the confession public at this time, expecting to gather more evidence for presentation to the Illinois prison board. But in some manner the story came to light at Vincennes.

CONTRACTS CLOSED FOR LABOR DAY MEET

All contracts for the Labor Day celebration to be held in Princeton next Monday and to be participated in by labor organizations from Gibson, Pike, Davless, Knox and Warwick counties, have been closed by the committee in charge and the celebration is expected to be the largest of its kind ever held in this part of the state.

During the morning hours there will be a parade with thousands in line. The parade will disband at the fair grounds, where a full day's program has been arranged, including addresses, free acts and sports of various kinds.

GRAY FOUND DEAD

Petersburg, Aug. 31.—Oscar Gray, 56, of Iva, nine miles east of Petersburg, was found dead in a hog lot last night, after he had been missed for more than eight hours. Gray went to feed his hogs before dinner. No alarm was felt by the family until last night when he failed to return for supper. Coroner Owen D. Harris held an inquest and returned a verdict that death resulted from apoplexy.

AT SOMERVILLE HOME

Mrs. Nora E. Foley, wife of Thomas M. Foley, died Saturday night at 7 o'clock at their home in Somerville. She was 74 years old. Death was caused by a complication of diseases and followed a long illness.

The deceased was a devout member of the St. Bernard Catholic church at Snake Run and was regular in her attendance there as long as her health would permit. She was well known and highly respected in Barton township, where she had resided many years.

The funeral service was conducted this morning at 9 o'clock in the St. Bernard Catholic church, with Father Ebnnet officiating. Interment was in the adjoining cemetery.

The body was brought to this city to the Lamb funeral home and prepared for burial, being removed to the home of the decedent Sunday afternoon.

Surviving, besides the husband, are: two daughters, Mrs. Ed Kelley and Mrs. Edgar Thompson, of Somerville; five sisters, Mrs. Mary Jewell, Mrs. Lizzie Jewell, Mrs. Adelia Manning, Mrs. Margaret Shay and Mrs. Catherine Shay, all of Minnesota; one brother, Mike Barrett, also of Minnesota; other relatives and a host of friends.

Ward, Marion township; Oscar Willis, Madison; Aaron Clark, Patoka; Roscoe DeTar, Patoka; Walter Robinson, Washington, and Curtis Bone, Lockhart. Petit jurors: Henry Abell, Washington township; Gaskell Corn, Lockhart; Russel Stewart, Madison; I. N. Barnett, Monroe; Hollis Sims, Madison; Otto S. Kemper, Lockhart, Everett Brenton, Logan; Willard Broyle, Marion; Charles E. Knight, Madison, and Mark Marshall, Patoka. Contingent jurors: Lyle Crow, Washington township; Guy Townsend, Marion; Harvey Gilham, Jefferson, and A. W. Corn, Patoka.

CAMP MEETING ENDS

The thirty-fifth annual camp meeting of the Southern Indiana Holiness Association came to an end in the large tabernacle in this city Sunday night. The meetings lasted ten days and were attended by large crowds. There was good preaching, splendid music and the interest was good. It is counted one of the most successful camp meetings held in Oakland City in recent years.

located was given basis this evening when convict labor was recalled to resume digging.

Officers, meanwhile, questioned Powers, alias Cornelius P. Pierson, in connection with the deaths of Mrs. Agatha Eicher and her three children, of Park Ridge, Ill., and Mrs. Dorothea Lemke, Worcester, Mass., a short time after counsel for the man talked to Powers in the county jail.

The bodies of the women and children were found Friday and late Saturday buried near the Quiet Dell "garage" Powers built.

Downtown Clarksburg was thrown in a state of excitement late today when a report was circulated that a sixth body had been found in a well at Quiet Dell.

Deputy Sheriff Simeon Bond said he was standing by the well when the last shovelful of dirt was taken out and that no body was found.

Sheriff William Grimm said drilling apparatus would be taken to Quiet Dell tomorrow for further digging in the abandoned well there. Officers said they were convinced they had not reached the bottom of the well when it was cleaned out today. It was drained to a depth of 12 feet.

The digging in the vicinity of the "garage" resulted from disclosure that Powers had made contacts with many women through matrimonial agencies. Mrs. Eicher and Mrs. Lemke were among those with whom he corresponded.

Detectives were studying a roll of film found in a camera, one of many articles located in Powers' garage. The film was developed today and six pictures disclosed Powers with Mrs. Lemke. Apparently the snapshots were taken in the vicinity of Mrs. Lemke's home at Worcester.

Powers was declared "legally sane" today by Dr. Edwin E. Mayer, nationally known University of Pittsburgh psychiatrist.

Mrs. Powers, his defiant, red-haired wife, denied he had written his love letters in his Clarksburg home—denied, in fact, that she ever knew he had written any.

WHEAT FOR ADMISSION

The Indiana Board of Agriculture has planned a new scheme this year whereby farmers in the state will be able to attend the Indiana State Fair on Wednesday, September 9, Farmers' Day, using wheat to pay admission. The scheme is to accept one bushel of wheat for adult admissions, one bushel of wheat to admit an automobile and one-half bushel to admit a child under twelve years of age.

SUES FOR DIVORCE

Mrs. Opha Blacketer, of this city, yesterday filed suit in the Gibson circuit court seeking a divorce from George Blacketer, also of this city. Abandonment and misconduct are charged. A similar suit was dismissed by Mrs. Blacketer a few weeks ago.
