and the local Labor Union which arranged the splendid celebration is entitled to great credit for their enterprise and zeal which resulted in such magnificent success.

The first train that arrived brought with it conclusive proof that the day was to be a success. That train was from the north on the E. & I. railroad and it unloaded here over 800 tollers from Washington, Petersburg and the mining towns intervening. Next came the special train from Princeton with about 400 more to add to the crowd. And then the regular afternoon passenger trains brought fully 400 more, making a total of 1,600 strangers in town besides the large number of farmers that came in wagons.

The banner which the local union offered for the largest delegation was awarded to Washington F. L. U., which had 180 men present, the next largest delegation was the Ayrshire Mine Workers with 106 men. Petersburg F. L. U. had 82, Little's Mine Workers 86, Petersburg Mine Workers 70, Princeton Mine Workers 59 and the Princeton F. L. U. 49, making a total of 635 visiting union men who came in bodies. The banner for the union making the best appearance was awarded to Little's Mine Workers.

Shortly after ten o'clock the parade moved from the fair grounds, going around the west side and into Main street on Harrison, moving south on Main street where it was reviewed by hundreds of people that lined the walks and crowded the windows.

The parade was made up of marching laborers, four bands and a drum corps, and was composed of about 1,200 people all told. It required 20 minutes time to pass the JOURNAL office.

After the parade covered its course the laborers dispersed to various lunch houses to get dinner, and after dinner they all assembled at the fair grounds to listen to the speaking.

There was an immense crowd of people in the amphitheatre and on the fair grounds when Edwin F. Gould, editor of The Union, arose to make the address of the day. His address was very lengthy, but the principal points he brought out may be summarized as follows:

In referring to Labor Day, the speaker said that in laboring circles it stands for what the Fourth of July stands for in the nation, the celebration of a new declaration of independence from slavish economic conditions. From this as a text, a comparison was made between the present economic conditions and that which organized labor demands. "Under the present regime," he said, "hovels and castles are erected within the shadows of each other, and the laboring man, living in his hovel, has to expend 75 per cent. of the product of his muscle to maintain the extravagance of the castle; while from out of the sweat of his brow he secures only 25 per cent to meet the meager necessities of the hovel."

The Blue Front,

Mr. Gould denied the proposition that all men are born equal. Referring to the birth of a babe in a wealthy family recently, he said that the crib of that infant was studded with diamonds valued at $25,000 and a $5,000 parasol shaded its face from the rays of the sun, and that its first clothing cost $10,000. He compared this with the child that is rocked in a cradle with a mortgage on it and vividly portrayed the difference in the lives of these two from the cradle to the grave.

The speaker said that improved machinery could be made a blessing to the race under new economic conditions, but under the present system they are a curse to the race.

Taking up the railroad question, he showed the despotism exercised by what he was pleased to call railroad kings. He stated that they own the land that produces the ore, the shops that convert the ore into machinery and utensils, the coal mines, the banks and other appurtenances of commerce, thereby taking from the people but giving nothing back. His theory is that the only remedy the people has left is for the government to own the railroads.

He commented upon the insincerity of the politicians in their professed love for the people, stating that they are apparent enemies of the trusts in politics, but a part of the same unit when it comes to personal and financial affairs.

Concluding, the speaker placed "Old Glory" at the head of the labor parade, the most exalted place it could occupy, declaring that the laboring men gave it birth in 1776, went to its defense in 1861, and stand ready at all times and under all circumstances to maintain its honor and dignity.

In the evening there was a large crowd on Main street to hear the band music, witness the cake walk and enjoy other amusements provided for them. All citizens and visitors united in pronouncing the day a most decided success.

A KENTUCKY farmer claims to have succeeded in cultivating ginseng. It is still found in some localities, but in limited quantities. Its preparation or cultivation was supposed to be impossible.

In the death of General Benjamin Harrison, twenty-third president of the United States, Indiana mourns the loss of its most distinguished citizen, and the nation is deprived of one of its greatest and most heroic characters. Benjamin Harrison was among the great Americans of the nineteenth century. He played many parts in the public life of his state and country and played all of them with distinguished ability and patriotic devotion to duty. He was a gallant soldier, a great lawyer, a valuable senator, an accomplished orator and a courageous and successful president. True, his administration when compared with the stirring events of other administrations in American history seems to have been uneventful. Opportunity did not offer to show how he would guide the nation through a great crisis, but it is safe to say he would have been equal to every emergency. He was an honest and patriotic man, in public life and out, and his name will go into history as that of one of the best American Presidents and statesman of unsullied fame.

Traveled Farmmen' Wives in Kansas.

Topika Capital. A Topeka woman recently visited a friend who lives on a farm not far from Manhattan. To entertain her, her hostess gave a dinner party, and of the fifteen persons present, all ladies and all living on neighboring farms in Riley county, eleven had traveled abroad. Several had been through Europe and Egypt and the Holy Land and one woman had lived four years in Japan. So much for the kind of folk that live on up-to-date Kansas farms.

After an extended visit among some of the young men, lagrippe has gone to other regions.

Misses Ella Colvin and Maggie Weatherly, accompanied by Miss Colvin of Petersburg, visited the college Wednesday, March 13.

The young men of the college dining hall entertained an equal number of young ladies at an oyster stew Friday evening. All report an enjoyable evening.

We all rejoice that the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. are each to have a room of their own when the new building is completed. The young women just now are enthusiastic over furnishing their new room. Each girl has some suggestion as to what shall be put into it, and each one is planning to help buy the furniture.

On Tuesday at 3 o'clock, March 12, the Rev. Mr. Farrel addressed the young men of the college on the subject,—"The Requisites and care of Young Men in View of the Signs of the Times." The address was appreciated by all present. A vote of thanks was extended and Mr. Farrel was cordially invited to meet the young men in the future.

On Tuesday, March 12, the Y. W. C. A. elected officers for the coming year. Misses Cordia Middleton and Addie L. Bishop, having allied very acceptably the respective offices of president and corresponding secretary, were chosen for the same position next year. The other officers are as follows: Sadie Arnold, vice president; Lottie Lee Mattigler, treasurer; Edna Wainner and Edith Crenshaw, secretaries.

Death of Mrs. A. D. Williams.

On Monday evening, Feb. 4, at Kennesaw, Neb., Mrs. Sarah Harn Williams died after a lingering illness. Mrs. Williams, with her husband, the late Prof. A. D. Williams, and family, were the first permanent settlers in Kennesaw township, having settled here in 1872. Prof. Williams died six years ago. Mrs. Williams was a native of Maryland, where she was born in 1828, so that at her death she was nearly 70 years old. In her youth educational advantages in Maryland were meagre. But Sally Harn was ambitious, and so Cedar Hill seminary in southern Pennsylvania found her first student and then a teacher at a time when it was the exception for girls to acquire anything more than the mere rudiments of an education. She became proficient not only in the textbooks of the schools, but a person of a wide range of reading and general culture. Her mind was analytical; she asked for the reason of things. With a rare command of language her conversation was a delight to her intimate friends. In 1850 she married and shared with her husband the enthusiasm of labor in church and educational fields for more than forty years.

"I was troubled for several years with chronic indigestion and nervous debility," writes F. J. Green, of Lancaster, N. H., "No remedy helped me until I began using Electric Bitters, which did me more good than all the medicines I ever used. They have also kept my wife in excellent health for years. She says Electric Bitters are just splendid for female troubles; that they are a grand tonic and invigorator for weak, run-down women. No other medicine can take its place in our family." Try them. INDIANA MINE WORKERS

Important Questions to Come Before the Tarrs Haute Meeting.

Terror Haute, Ind., March 12.—The convention of Indiana Mine Workers, to be held in this city this week, promises to be interesting. A scale committee will be appointed to agree with the operators on a wage contract for the year beginning April 1. Among the questions is that of the recognition of the Hoisting Engineers' Brotherhood as a separate labor organization, including the wage scale for engineers in the United Mine Workers' contract. It is the same question that has been under discussion for a week or more in the Illinois joint conference. The operators in this state, as in Illinois, are inclined to encourage the hoisting engineers in their purpose to retain a separate organization. There is also the question of pay for the mule drivers. They are receiving lower wages than they were paid three years ago, at which time they suffered a reduction, in pursuance of an interstate agreement to make a uniform scale, and since then all other labor at a mine has received an increase.

An Old Grudge Ends.

Muncie, Ind., March 12.—Because they could not agree as to whether or not an old rickety shanty should have a board nailed across a window, William Jones, known as "Fighting Bill," yesterday shot James Herron twice in the month. Herron died almost instantly. The killing was witnessed by Hattie Herron, wife of the murdered man, and John Rhoades, a writing teacher, who were attracted to the spot by the quarrel between the men. The parties to the affair lived within a few feet of each other and the quarrel is of long standing.

An Honest Medicine for La Grippe.

George W. Waite, of South Gardner, Mo., says: "I have had the worst cough, cold, chills and grip and have taken lots of trash of no account but profit to the vendor. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the only thing that has done any good whatever. I have used one bottle of it and the chills, cold and grip have all left me. I congratulate the manufacturers of an honest medicine." For sale by A. G. Troutman.
