

Fri Aug 21, 1931

71 yr No. 210

PD Dem

Front Page

and through the courtesy of Mayor Hartford of the Port City they were able to inspect one of the submarines docked at the yard.

"The boys went through the undersea craft from stem to stern and made mental note of the experience to relate to the folks back in Princeton."

LABOR DAY MEET HERE SUNDAY P. M.

A meeting of the Southern Indiana Labor Day Association will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Princeton C. L. U. hall. This will be one of the big meetings of the organization and a large attendance of local union delegates south of the B. & O. Railroad is expected. Detailed plans for the gigantic union Labor Day celebration to be held in Princeton on Monday, Sept. 7, will be reviewed and various matters of importance to the celebration will be taken up at this meeting.

MAN DROWNS AS WATER FLOODS CLINTON MINE

CLINTON, Ind., Aug. 21.—(UP)—Water which flooded a mine near here trapped a father and son and caused the death of the former, Samuel W. Whitworth, 60, Fairview Park. The son, Carl, attempted to hold his father above water, but was barely able to escape with his own life.

Two other sons, also working in the mine, saw the approaching water and fled after warning their father and brother.

KENOSHA, Wis., Aug. 21.—Mystery today surrounded the body of a red-headed woman, about 30 years old whose bruised and beaten body was found on the Silber Lake about 22 miles west of Kenosha. An autopsy performed by Dr. L. Miloslavich, pathologist at the University of Milwaukee, revealed that the woman, attired in a dark colored dress but wearing neither stockings, had been beaten and strangled. Lack of blood on the outside of the throat gave the theory that she had been strangled.

Police discounted a theory that the woman was the wife of Harry Morris A. Camden, Chicago bootlegger who was found murdered near Minneapolis, last Monday.

One of the most promising leads in the woman's identity came from Chicago, where Phillip Russo, a merchant, told police he believed the woman might have been his wife who disappeared July 30, 1930.

Russo's wife, Jean, was 38 years old and was well known as a radio personality. Russo said he had never found a clue as to what became of her. Her description tallied almost perfectly with that of the dead woman, that his wife's eyes were brown and those of the slain woman were blue-gray.

The body was found by Mr. August Bundesguard, and Mr. Mitchell, of Silver Lake, who were out on an early morning fishing expedition. They notified Dr. B. A. Mitchell, who said the woman had been dead for six hours.

The body was found 100 feet from the home of Jacob Faber, a merchant. Faber told police he had heard a disturbance during the night.

Dr. Miloslavich said there were signs of a terrific struggle between the woman and her attacker. He said she had been attacked.