This is the first time the celebration has been held at Petersburg although the observance had its beginning at Littleton, a tiny Pike county hamlet near Petersburg. In more recent years the observance has annually rotated between Princeton and Boonville but this year it was shifted to Petersburg following the development of the Hornady Park area there.

Mr. Peters stated that the store will be located in building formerly housing the Shop on north Main street building will be remodeled, including a new interior decorating fixtures.

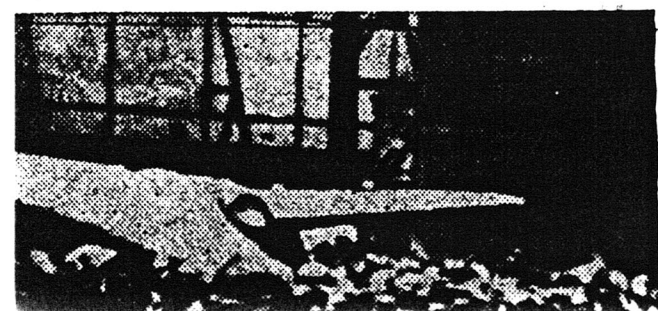

In making his announcement Thursday, Mr. Peters said the Rechter Bros. had 14 stores located in southern Illinois and Missouri. "This company's first store in Princeton and we decided on Princeton thoroughly investigating the area," he said.

The stores will carry a wide variety of general merchandise including men's, women's and children's ready to wear apparel, dry goods and other merchandise. "We hope to give the buying public some new ideas in the way of shopping by employing self service; the store will also employ a complete staff of employees from the local inhabitants," he said.

The store is scheduled to open early in October.

The home office of the store is in St. Louis.
