ANNOUNCE LIST OF PRIZES FOR LABOR EVENTS

WILL BE GIVEN FOR WINDOW DISPLAY AND BEST SHOWING IN PARADE—PROGRAM TAKING SHAPE

Soliciting of merchants for contributions toward Labor day will be started Monday, by the finance committee, composed of Charles Pickett, Louis Austin, and Lester Nelson.

The program and prizes as announced this morning by Dale Skelton are as follows: For the best business float, $50 first prize and $25 second prize. Fifteen dollars will be given for the best window display of union-made goods; for the best appearance of local unions in the parade, $50 first prize and $25 for the second prize. A miners loving cup will be given to the local mine union having the greatest percentage present.

Announce Speakers

Speakers on the program will be James Murdoch, vice president of the Railway Trainmen of Canada, and M. Cliff Townsend, of Indianapolis, who will speak for the farm bureau. A jug band, which is also a colored quartet, will be brought here from Louisville. There will be a balloon ascension, and arrangements have been made to take motion pictures of the parade. Although the free acts have not been announced, assurance is given that they will be of the very best.

Mayor J. W. McCarty, of Washington, has assured the local Labor day association that he will urge every laboring man and his family of his city to be present at the celebration. With this assurance an attendance of 55,000 is expected.

Dale Skelton, treasurer, pointed out that all checks given to the solicitors should be made payable to him.

GIRL STUDYING

BOYS HIDDEN IN FREIGHT TRUCK SENT BACK HOME

Norman Bartlett, 13, and John Murphy, 12, were held by city police as runaways yesterday afternoon. The two boys had crawled into a motor freight truck at Evansville and had hidden while the driver was loading. Undiscovered they rode almost to Princeton.

The truck stopped at a garage, and then drove away. One of the garage attendants saw the boys and notified the next stop that the boys were on board. The driver brought them to the police station.

Police questioned them, and the boys said their home was in Princeton. Further questioning disclosed they did not know the names of streets upon which they were supposed to live. They were placed in a cell and left to reflect on their story. They were questioned again and admitted their homes were in Evansville.

Evansville police were notified and the names and stories of the boys were checked. It was found the two boys were on parole from the boys' school at Plainfield.

Police came from Evansville last night and took them home.

STATE HIGHWAY BODY TO DECIDE ITS NEXT STEP

INDIANAPOLIS, July 24. — (AP) — Members of the state highway commission today were called for a special meeting next Tuesday to consider the next step to be taken in the controversy which has been waged over the receiving of bids for road construction on only three types of bituminous paving.

The injunction issued yesterday by Judge Harry O. Chamberlin of the Marion circuit court against this method of receiving bids has resulted in holding up 128.7 miles of road construction.
