MOTION PICTURES TO BE MADE OF MONSTER PROCESSION — FLOATS OF GREAT BEAUTY BE- ING PREPARED—MANY BANDS ENGAGED

Princeton is getting ready to receive the southern Indiana Labor day hosts, Monday.

The annual celebration of Labor day, Monday, September 7, will bring many thousands to this city just as it did last year. This is one of the greatest labor gatherings in the country and its fame has gone out over the country.

A great parade will be the uptown event in the morning with all the leading bands of this section of the state taking part, labor organizations moving in divisions, picturesque floats and in fact everything to make a colorful pageant.

To Take Motion Pictures

In connection with the parade the public is warned to keep out of the street as much as possible because this year motion pictures will be taken.

These motion picture trucks will be dashing about, running up and down the line of the parade. They have to move fast and every effort will be made to give them a clear path.

There will be at least four state highway policemen here Monday to aid in handling the traffic. The city police will have the entire force on duty and the labor organizations will furnish 12 men who will also assist in handling traffic.

Monster Crowd Expected

Indications are that the crowd here Monday will be fully as large or larger than the monster throng that gathered here for the Labor day celebration last year.

It is safe to say that the floats which will be seen in the parade Monday will be gorgeous. Word comes of various creations which are being completed. Most of this work is being done secretly. Some of the floats will be gorgeous and will represent all that skill and artistry can produce.

The Chicago decorators who are here this week have been busy on many of these pieces of industry while still others are expected to come in from outside towns, Monday morning

CARS COLLIDE; WOMAN INJURED

An automobile owned and driven by George McNary, colored, of Chicago, formerly a resident of Princeton, and occupied also by James Dean and his sister, Mrs. Inez Anderson, both col-ored, was in headon collision about 4 o'clock this morning with another au-tomobile about 15 miles south of Princeton on Highway 41. The Mc-Nary car was coming north.

Both cars were badly damaged and overturned in a ditch. Mrs. Anderson suffered painful cuts

When asked upon their arrival in New York from France if they intended to wed, Constance Bennett, of film fame, and the Marquis de la Blaise were non-committal. The Marquis, or "Hank," as he is known in Hollywood, is the husband of Gloria Swanson, who recently divorced him there. The decree doesn't become final until October. Maybe the wedding bells will then ring for Connie and Hank.

north to Spruce street and then west to the fairgrounds. The parade will circle the fairgrounds track in order that the judges may get a good view of the procession in judging for prizes.

Miners locals compete for their loving cup and awards are made for best representation in the parade. Awards will be made for the best floats and also for the best store window display of union made goods.

Speakers Secured

At the fairgrounds Boyd Gorley, editor of the Indianapolis Times, will be the chief speaker for labor. Due to the illness of M. Cliff Townsend, well known state officer of the farm bureau, another speaker has been secured. Farmer Brown comes from a western state and is known for his ability to present the problems of the farmer in a forceful manner. A telegram was received this morning from Chicago stating that Farmer Brown would be here and would take part in the Labor day program.

A complete amplifying system will be installed on the grounds so that the voices of the speakers will be carried to all parts of the grounds. This will make it easy to hear no matter where the listener is located.

Following is the line of march for the parade:

LATVIANS WILL RENAME STREETS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4. — The United States George Washington bicentennial commission has just been informed by the state department of a gracious act by which the Latvian government will honor George Washington next year on the two hundredth anniversary of his birth. In a recent letter to the state department, the American minister at Riga, F. W. B. Coleman, reports being advised by the Latvian ministry for foreign affairs that the municipality of Riga, capital of Latvia, has resolved to change the name of "Hauza square" to "Washington square." Further, the municipality of Jelgava, Latvia, has determined to rename "Sluzn square" to "Washington square," and "Dambja street" to "Washington street."

rest. England was willing enough to grant independence to the colonies on the eastern seaboard, and it cost Washington many an anxious effort to safeguard the west which for some time England had no intention of giving up. In the treaty of peace of 1783 the Mississippi was recognized as the western boundary.

After his two months' work in congress, that body voted him thanks, and the commander-in-chief left, ultimately to take formal occupation of New York, to bid farewell to his officers, and finally resign his commission to congress on the great occasion at Annapolis which every schoolboy knows. But in the light of the previous events here recorded, that occasion has a meaning which every American needs to ponder over.

Within the space of a few months, George Washington had been offered and had refused supreme dictatorship over the United States, and, far from yielding to any such temptation, had with simple dignity handed back his powers to congress and returned to Mount Vernon just another American citizen.
