Sprague of Oakland City, delivering the invocation. The musical program for this week is in the hands of Miss Nellie Young of this city. Those who appeared on the program today were Misses Flora Becker, Irene Sandage and Helen Miller, with vocal solos. There was also a piano duet by Virginia Bolton and Mable Baker.

Miss Margaret O'Neil, Gibson county health nurse, was the first speaker on the program, her subject being "Preventing the Closing of Schools by Contagious Diseases." She claimed that the parents were often careless about the health of the child and that the school authorities should watch the child more carefully for any signs of disease. She advised the teachers concerning the health of the public.

Fact, Not Theory

After an intermission of about ten minutes, the next speaker on the program, Dr. Roscoe Gilmore Stott, as County Superintendent U. S. Abbott announced, needed no introduction to the teachers. Dr. Stott chose for his subject, "Brass Tacks." He alluded to the fact that the information that he was generously handing out was not theory but facts. During his spare time he had a friend picked out 117 teachers who had absolutely failed in their profession. He found out the following facts:

That one failed, because of ill health. Another because of lack of knowledge.

A third because of lack of neatness. Two failed because of two much ego. Eleven failed because they lacked power to hold interest.

Eleven failed because they lacked social efficiency. Five of these were flirts.

Eleven were lacking in morals and character.

Twenty-three failed through having no heart in their work—or out of pure laziness.

Fifty-six failed through the lack of fact. Sometimes they punished wrongly. They would not keep order.

Dr. Stott declared there is too much punishment after school. He showed that the teacher after a day's work was mentally unfit to punish a child after school and that the child invariably would not get a square deal. If the punishing is done before the school starts, the child will stand a better chance of getting a square deal.

Dr. L. H. Vincent of Boston, Mass., this morning spoke on "Franklin as a Man of Letters," and this afternoon on "Lowell as Critic, Letter Writer and American." William F. Vogel of the state department of public instruction spoke this afternoon on the significance of the new teachers' success schedule.

DROWNS AT LAKE BEACH

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., Aug. 23.—(AP)—Marie Wozniak, Cleveo, Ill., was drowned at Watery Beach, Lake Michigan.

Until comparatively recently he maintained a life-long habit of giving his views on public questions. He was in his 90's when he took issue with Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia on the merits of prohibition. Dr. Elliot, revealing that he had become a total abstainer at the age of 80, praised the Volstead act.

There will be funeral services tomorrow and in Appleton chapel, Harvard university, on Wednesday.

Headed Harvard at 35

Born in Boston in the administration of Andrew Jackson, he became president of Harvard at the age of thirty-five and lived to survive his contemporaries. His administration was featured by development of the elective system which has since been adopted extensively by other colleges. Throughout his life he was an active participant in discussion of public affairs. His views were sought on many questions. Often his pronouncements made him a target for bitter personal attack.

His attitudes were characterized with vigor but by no means inelastic as was shown, when after denouncing football in 1900, as a "spectacle more brutalizing than prize fighting, cock-fighting and bull-fighting" he later saw Harvard play Carlele and praised improvement under changed rules.

Fear Does Not Deter, His View

In a discussion of "Religion of the Future," he said: "The fear of hell has not proved effective to deter man from wrongdoing, and heaven has never been described in terms very attractive to the average man or woman."

Puritans found little favor with him. "They took the joy out of work and life," he once wrote.

PLAN TO ATTEND LABOR DAY MEET

There were two farm bureau meetings in the county Saturday night, one being held at Ft. Branch and the other at Haubstadt. The attendance at each meeting was good.

It was decided by both bureaus to join in the Labor day celebration here September 6.

For the final plans, committees of each township of the county will meet Wednesday night in the office of County Agent East.

SEVEN SERVICES WELL ATTENDED

A large crowd attended all seven services held at the Emmanuel Baptist church yesterday. A number came forward manifesting an interest.

Tonight Evangelist E. W. Reeder will take for his subject, "The Second Coming of Christ, the End of the World and the Judgment."

The revival will continue all this week. Services begin each night at 7:30 o'clock. Large crowds are expected.
