BATTLESHIP INDIANA STARTS NEW LAST CRUISE FROM NAVY YARD

Made Target for Aviators to Test Out High Explosives—Vessel Played Prominent Part in Spanish-American War Days

PRINCETON, Sept. 6—The old battleship Indiana started Friday on her last cruise from the Philadelphia Navy Yard. She is going to the lower Chesapeake bay where she will become a target for aviators. The passing of the old battleship is a sad event for the department. It was one of the old timers of the navy. She was launched in 1895 and was built by the Philadelphia Navy Yard. She was a member of the fleet of the United States Navy. She was the flagship of the fleet during the Spanish-American War. She was the flagship of the fleet during the Spanish-American War. flagship, humbled the Dons. By the far-sightedness of Cleveland the arm of McKinley was strengthened. "It was in the latter days of the Cleveland regime, at a time when filibustering expeditions in aid of the Cubans led to much friction with Spain and when American ships in Cuban waters were frequently chased and overhauled by cruisers of Castile, that Captain Robley D. Evans, commander of the Indiana, one summer's day called on the president. In the course of the talk Fighting Bob is reported to have said: 'Mr. President, if you will let me take the Indiana down there, there won't be anything but Spanish spoken in hell for the next ten years.' "On that memorable Sunday morning, in July, 1898, Fighting Bob was in at the finish, but in command of another ship, the Iowa. Both ships played parts in making the words of Evans real. Then it was that Captain Jack Phillip, on the Texas, later a target for a salvo to test modern gunnery, hushed the cheers of his men with the words, 'Don't cheer, boys, the poor devils are dying.' "And now the Indiana is to be made a target. This sentiment plays a small part in the inexorable search for efficiency."

LABOR DAY DAWNS FAIR

Monday, September 6, is Labor Day and is a legal holiday everywhere in the United States except in New Mexico and the District of Columbia.

In Princeton practically every business house and industry is closed today. This year there is no labor parade in this city but the celebration will be none the less general with a well deserved rest being taken on the family plan.

The weather is ideal for picnics, automobile parties and excursions of all kinds and is also fine for simply breezing around home, smoking a peaceful pipe and catching up on the newspapers.

This afternoon for those who like good sport there will be a rousing baseball game between the Princeton Hoosiers and Ft. Branch, winner take all.

This will be a match "for blood," and it is safe to say will be well attended.

'I'M CZAR NICK,' SAYS PRETENDER

DISPATCH DECLARES CLAIMANT OF THRONE IS GATHERING SUPPORT

NEW YORK, Sept. 6—A recent dispatch from London brings the information that a man purporting to be Czar Nicholas II of Russia is raising a large following in Siberia. According to his allegations, he asserts that it was one of his faithful servants who was killed in his place by the Bolsheviki at Ekaterinburg over two years ago. The present soviet government has offered a reward of 2,000,000 rubles for this alleged pretender's head.

If this man is an impostor another name can be added to the long list of pretenders to the crowns of Europe. In bygone days some were successful in establishing their claims, while others paid the penalty for their false allegations on the guillotine. One of the successful claimants to a throne of Europe proved to be a wise and able ruler.

About 1493 a mysterious stranger appeared in Cork, Ireland, where the people greeted him as the brother of Edward IV of England, but he denied this. They then claimed he was the son of Richard III and he denied this, too. But at length he admitted that he was the Duke of York, one of the two princes whom it was believed Richard III had murdered in the Tower of London.

Members of the nobility came from England, and after questioning the stranger they were convinced that he was the Duke of York. He then called himself Richard Plantagenet, Duke of York, son of Edward IV, and by right of succession Richard IV of England. Henry VII was then ruler of England, and he did all in his power to
