LABOR DAY

Labor Supports America's High Position Of Leadership

This Labor Day, 1952, marks another year in the great progress being made here in America. It marks, too, the time when we pay tribute to the laboring forces of our country — the men who have made this achievement possible. Our country is geared to defend the free nations of the world . . . to defeat the threat of communism. It is those men in factories, in offices, and in the fields who have made it possible to meet the production demanded by this effort! Because of the contribution of Labor, this nation has attained a high position of leadership . . . and of greatness!
